

Eleanor Bangs Patrick died Friday, Jan. 6, 2006, at her daughter's residence in Gainesville, Fla.

She was a summer resident of Highlands, N.C., for half a century. She was an avid golfer and a familiar figure at the recreation center tennis courts. She graduated from Guilford College in Greensboro, N.C. She was a Quaker by faith.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Rembert W. Patrick, a former University of Georgia and University of Florida history professor.

Survivors include: two sons, Rembert W. Patrick Jr. of Lochloosa, Fla., and John R. B. Patrick of Crystal River, Fla.; a daughter, Sherrie Southworth of Gainesville, Fla.; two grandsons, including Darren Patrick McGillivray of Highlands; and a great-grandson, Darren Patrick McGillivray.

The family will hold a private ceremony in Highlands. Memorial contributions may be made to the local Hospice chapter.

Milam Funeral Home in Gainesville, Fla., was in charge of funeral arrangements.

The Clayton Tribune, Jan. 26, 2006