

Veteran Dies

Mr. James Ramey, one of the few Civil War veterans, died February 17, 1929 and was buried at the McGee cemetery. Mr. Ramey was a Christian gentleman. It has been said of him that he would shout and praise his Lord while at work as well as at church.—His son, Mr. Will Ramey, who lives some where in the West, came home and was here for the funeral and while here bought a home for his mother in which she could spend the remainder of her life. Hats off to this son.

The Franklin Press, 14 March 1929