

Maxine Teague Ramey, 72, of Glenville, N.C., affectionately known as "Minnie Pearl," died Saturday, June 10, 2006, at Angel Medical Center in Franklin, N.C.

She was born Feb. 15, 1934, in Canton, N.C., to Ulyus and Gladys Hopper Teague. She was employed for many years in the textile industry and worked for about 17 years delivering the Anderson (S.C.) Independent-Mail. She was a member of Mountain City Church of God.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Lloyd W. Ramey, and three sisters, Betty Darnell, Dean Howell and Alene Lankford.

Survivors include: two sons and a daughter-in-law, Lee Ramey of Rabun Gap and Gary and Patti Ramey of Glenville, N.C.; two grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; and several nephews, nieces and cousins.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at Mountain City Church of God with the Rev. Wren Worley, Lloyd Hunter and Bill Howell officiating. Burial followed at Wolffork Cemetery in Rabun Gap.

Hunter Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

The Clayton Tribune, June 15, 2006